Our position

The Group is fully supportive of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and is committed to the prevention of modern slavery and human trafficking in all its forms, and will not tolerate or condone the abuse of human rights within any part of its business or supply chains.

Our policies in relation to modern slavery and human trafficking

The Group is committed to business integrity, high ethical and moral standards and professionalism in all its activities. 'Doing the right thing' forms a central part of Aspers values. In line with these values. The Group has a zero-tolerance approach to slavery and human trafficking, which extends to all business dealings and transactions in which it is involved, regardless of location or sector. The Group remains committed to strengthening its practices in this area, both within its own business and across its supply chains.

Modern slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It takes various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking, all of which have in common the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain.

The Group expects high standards from all of its contractors, suppliers and other business partners, we expect our suppliers to have appropriate anti-slavery and human trafficking policies and processes and communicate to our key suppliers that we have zero tolerance in regard to these matters. The Group expects that its suppliers will hold their own suppliers accountable to the same high standards for example, as part of its ongoing effort to identify and mitigate risk Aspers has updated the standard procurement contract terms used by its UK businesses to seek to ensure suppliers and, in turn, their suppliers, will comply with all laws, regulations and codes relating to slavery and human trafficking.

The Group is committed to;

- Acting ethically and with integrity in all its business dealings and relationships.
- Ensuring effective systems and controls are in place to ensure modern slavery is not taking place anywhere in its own business or in any of its supply chains.
- Continue to ensure there is transparency in its own business and in its approach to tackling modern slavery throughout its supply chains.
- Committed to creating and maintaining a safe and healthy working environment for its employees, customers and the community.

Due diligence, specific risks and supplier adherence to Aspers' values

In 2016 Aspers established a Modern slavery working group with representatives from its HR, Compliance and Finance departments. The working group undertakes an internal risk assessment exercise on an annual basis with each division and with the central procurement function to evaluate the Group's risks and identify best practices, around the prevention of slavery and human trafficking with its supply chains or any part of its business.

Information and training about slavery and human trafficking

To ensure an understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains and our business, we provide training to relevant employees who are involved in procurement and supplier management processes. All members of our senior management team have been briefed on the subject.

The Group have a comprehensive suite of employee policies which are relevant to our attempts to ensure that there is no modern slavery in any part of our workforce. Our relevant policies include:

- Recruitment Policy
- Equality and Diversity Policy
- Dignity at Work Policy
- Communication Policy
- Confidential Hotline Policy
- Disciplinary and Grievance Procedures

Board-level sign-off of this statement

The Group recognises the importance of the provision of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and the Directors aim to ensure that slavery and human trafficking have no part in the Group's operations and supply chain.

The Group has always been vigilant about employee welfare and aims to be transparent in its practices. The Board welcomes the opportunity to state its firm commitment to a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery and human trafficking.

Signed

Mr Richard Noble
